HIGHLIGHTS FROM BIOFACH

p. 31-38

JP MORGAN ACQUIRES ITALIAN CHOCOLATE BRAND PERNIGOTTI

The Italian chocolate brand Pernigotti has been acquired by JP Morgan Asset Management-Global Special Situations Group for an undisclosed sum. An agreement has indeed been signed with Turkey's Toksöz Group, owner of Pernigotti, for the sale of its entire share package and the Novi Ligure factory, which was closed in 2018. Now, the plan is to reopen the factory as soon as possible in order to be running in time for the Christmas season. The sale ends more than two years of uncertainty over the future of Pernigotti, whose foundation dates back to 1860. The acquisition of Pernigotti comes a few months after JP Morgan entered the capital of Walcor, a Cremona-based leading Italian chocolate manufacturer. Both acquisitions are part of the US multinational's plans to create an Italian chocolate hub.

LAVAZZA ENTERS THE METAVERSE WITH 'LAVAZZA ARENA'

Lavazza has officially entered the Metaverse by launching a football videogame designed to raise awareness among youngsters about one of the most urgent environmental issues, deforestation. Lavazza Arena enables the community to have fun and at the same time understand the extent of the phenomenon: everyday, the Amazon Forest is losing over a million trees, equivalent to the area of a football pitch every 20 seconds. Lavazza Foundation's many projects inspired this game. The project deals with Cesvi to support native communities in the reforestation of the Peruvian Amazon in Tambopata province in the Madre de Dios region.

EDOARDO FREDDI INTERNATIONAL: PROSECCO HAS REACHED NEW HIGHTS

The Italian wine export management company Edoardo Freddi International has unveiled the most performing wines of the season. The undisputed protagonist, in Italy and abroad, is Prosecco, whose production has increased by 25.4% last year and a further 17.8% increase in bottling was registered in the first four months of 2022. Prosecco exports were also up 27% over 2020. In particular, exports to the US have surged, exceeding 98 million euro in the first 9 months of 2021. Pinot Grigio is instead among the most appreciated vines in Canada, where organic, vegan, sustainable and orange wines are also becoming increasingly popular. The white wine Lugana Doc is mainly preferred by the Germans, while Chinese consumers are showing a growing interest for Moscato d'Asti.

AMADORI AMONG THE 100 MOST VALUABLE FOOD BRANDS

Amadori is among the 100 most valuable food brands in the world, according to the ranking compiled by the global consulting firm Brand Finance, together with only four five Italian brands. In detail, Amadori ranks in the 96th position, for a value of 800 million dollars. The Brand Finance Food & Drink 2022 report is based upon the financial impact that comes from a brand image and reputation, combined its ability in influencing consumer choices. Together, these two elements generate an indicator that anticipates the company performance and the brand business potential in terms of sales volumes and price premium.

SPERLARI TAKES OVER PALUANI

The Cremona-based confectionery group Sperlari, controlled by the German group Katjes International, has announced the acquisition of the Italian confectionery company Paluani - producer of Traditional Festive cakes - for 8 million euro. The agreement includes the absorption of 48 employees and a warehouse valued at around 400,000 euro. The Sperlari group was the only bidder that presented a proposal to the Bankruptcy Court of Verona to purchase Paluani, which was owned by the Campedelli family until it became insolvent. The company will be renamed Paluani 1921, like the year of foundation.

Ancient Rome's most beloved 'sauce'

Colatura di Alici's origins date back to the 2nd Century BC, even if the modern production technique was first introduced by the Cistercians Catholic monks. In 2020, it received the PDO status.

Savoury and sea-flavored. A true 'umami concentrate', but with a 100% Mediterranean style. It's Colatura di Alici, the typical fish-sauce from the Cetara village, in the Campania region. It comes from anchovies that are layered together with salt, weighted down and left to ferment in barrels until they release the precious 'liquid', which can be aged for up to three years. Today, Colatura is mainly used as a condiment for main course like spaghetti and risotto, or as dressing for green salads. A niche product with a millenary tradition, whose knowledge is, nevertheless, not much widespread.

In Ancient Rome (2nd Century BC), the imperial chef Apicio made wide use of a fish sauce for its banquets, whose recipe was first written down a few centuries later by the Latin writer Gargilio Marziale: put some aromatic herbs in a jar and then a layer of small fishes (probably anchovies) and large fished cut into pieces (perhaps mackerels or tunas); cover with a thick layer of coarse salt, put on a lid and leave to rest; stir after seven days and then repeat once a day for the following 20 days. The result was a creamy sauce, which was pressed to obtain a liquid called 'garum'. Colatura di Alici as we know it today was nevertheless invented in the XIII Century by the Cistercians monks living near Amalfi (Campania), who wanted to store and preserve the fish caught in Summer for later use. The 'discovery' of Colatura di Alici was almost accidental, when a liquid with a pleasant flavor came out from the space among two detached barrel staves.

And today? Colatura di Alici is made according to a specific production disciplinary and in 2020 it received the PDO (Protected Denomination of Origin) recognition. Only anchovies fished in the Gulf of Salerno between March and July are used. Head-off and gutted, they are layered down in a oak barrel, arranged with the classic 'head-tail' technique in alternating layers of salt and anchovies. The barrel is covered with a disk with weights placed on it. Due to the pressing and maturing, an amber-colored liquid with an intense flavor emerges: it's Colatura di Alici from Cetara PDO.

LO STRANIERO 2020

Our idea of Pinot Nero

Lo Straniero is mysterious like certain days at the end of September. It has clear eyes that change color in the wood. Follow it and it will show you the place of the wild strawberries, as well as the one where you hid your greatest secret: it will teach you how to not fear it. It has the elegant manners of the good old days. If it conquers you, it will be forever.

Il Poggiarello

ilpoggiarellovini.it

In the TRENDING NOW section we aim to present some of the most recent product launches in the Italian retail market - or that are set to debut soon - as well as products that have been warmly welcomed by customers because of their quality and innovative features.

In this issue of Italy for Asia the focus is set on products with truffle inclusions, which give a 'premium' touch to any dish, sweet or savory. And the premium segment, as we well know, has been enjoying steady growth over the past years, thus remaining high on the agenda of food companies including the Italian ones, for which truffle is a true national pride.

Another category that is enjoying great dynamism is that of sweets and confectionery. The pandemic and the current gloomy economic and political scenario have indeed triggered the need for 'Comfort food' in the mind consumers all over the world. As a consequence, Italian producers of candy, desserts, chocolate treats (and ready-to-cook options, as well) have been launching an array of new products. And more will come.

IUS NATURAE VALDOBBIADENE
PROSECCO SUPERIORE DOCG BRUT
BIOLOGICO

We've been using organic wine-growing techniques for many years, converting our family vineyards, located in the heart of Valdobbiadene and within the Parco della Filadelfia. We firmly believe in the principles of sustainability and total respect for the environment. We chose the Brut because of its more international appeal, Millesimato so as to highlight the characteristics of each and every harvest in keeping with the Ius Naturae, or 'natural law', upon which every human law is based.

Made with Ribolla Gialla, a variety typically grown in the Collio area, this Brut sparkling wine is produced following the traditional white vinification and Charmat method, where the foam forms in stainless steel autoclaves at a controlled temperature. The result is a fragrant sparkling wine, with a fresh bouquet characterized by hints of honey, almonds and exotic fruits. The palate is pleasant, well-structured and moderately sour with a long aromatic finish.

'WHY NOT ?' PROSECCO MILLESIMATO DOC EXTRA DRY

Straw yellow with nice greenish hints, brilliant. Fine and persistent perlage. Fresh and aromatic notes typical for the grape variety, rich in fruity perfumes, with hints of green-apple, Williams-pear and citrus, blending into floral notes. In the mouth the wine is full, aromatic, and velvety. A good balance, thanks to the good acidity. Long and typical green apple after taste. Really appreciated as an aperitif, can be combined to the entire meal.
